MEDIA ALERT

White River fully open for all recreational activities.

NOBLESVILLE, INDIANA – April 30, 2024

WHO: Anyone who plans to use the White River for boating, kayaking, canoeing, rafting, and or other recreational activities.

WHAT: The White River is now fully open for all recreational activities. The waterway restriction that was in place for construction of the new Pleasant Street bridge has been lifted, and buoys have been removed, giving waterway users access to use the full width of the river. The City of Noblesville has coordinated with the White River Canoe Company to help alert boaters and others about the restrictions being lifted.

We are asking for help from the media to alert residents. While the restrictions are lifted, the surrounding area is still an active construction zone. We ask that people exercise caution as they navigate the river and refrain from entering the construction zone.

WHERE: At the new Pleasant Street bridge, south of the SR 32 (Conner Street) Bridge over the White River. Please see attached photo of the area.

WHY: The construction is part of Reimagine Pleasant Street, which is a multi-phased transportation improvement project to improve mobility and complement the growth of Noblesville. The critical first phase, which includes the construction of a new White River Bridge, will be open by the end of 2024. Construction for Phases 2 and 3 have begun, and the entire corridor will be open to traffic by the end of 2025.
